

New Series from Author of One of Booklist's Top 10 Romances of 2013

- Tongue-in-cheek romance and hilarity abound in an exciting historical setting by an acclaimed up-and-coming author
- “A Talent for Trouble is a laugh-out-loud historical romance with feisty, fun-loving characters. . . . Readers can look forward to [Turano’s] sense of charm and wit in each novel.”—RT Book Reviews
- Series focuses on lively middle-class heroines who brush shoulders with New York City’s upper classes in the 1880s

After years of working in a millinery shop, Miss Harriet Peabody dreams of the day when she’ll open up her own shop and sell re-fashioned gowns to independent working women like herself. When a delivery errand goes sadly awry, her job—and her chance at saving enough for her shop—is at stake all due to a rather unfortunate misunderstanding with a customer.

Mr. Oliver Addleshaw enjoys a certain position in society, but his real aim is to follow in the footsteps of men like Cornelius Vanderbilt. On the verge of his biggest business deal yet, he learns his potential partner prefers to deal with men who are settled down and respectably married. As matters stand, Oliver’s ex not-quite-fiancée recently became unhinged and lost a poor shop girl her job. Oliver feels bad for the hapless Harriet and, hoping to kill two birds with one stone, asks for her help in making a good impression in his business deal.

Harriet dives into the circles of high society head first, only to find that her love of fashion can’t make her fashionable. She’ll never truly fit into Oliver’s world, but just as she’s ready to call off the fake engagement, fancy dinners, and elegant balls, a threat from her past forces both Oliver and Harriet to discover that love can come in the most surprising packages.

“Full of lively banter, fun adventure, and loveable characters, A Match of Wits is a pleasure. This outstanding getaway read will remind readers why they love Turano’s books.”
