Barrett, C. K. Luke the Historian in Recent Study. London: Epworth, 1961. A classic survey of attitudes toward Luke as a historian; that concludes that the evangelist's interest in biographical method is prompted by his rejection of gnosticism.

- Bock, Darrell. Proclamation from Prophecy and Pattern: Lucan Old Testament Christology. JSNTSup12. Sheffield: Sheffield Academic Press, 1987. Studies Luke's use of the Old Testament in light of his christological interests.
- Bonz, Marianne Palmer. The Past as Legacy. Luke-Acts and Ancient Epic. Minneapolis: Fortress, 2000.
- Bovon, François. Luke the Theologian. Waco: Baylor University Press, 2006. A survey of scholarship, originally published in 1978, with major updates through 1987 and minor updates since then.
- Brawley, Robert L. Centering on God: Method and Message in Luke-Acts. LCBI. Louisville: Westminster John Knox, 1990. A literary-critical study of Luke-Acts that focuses on point of view, levels of reliability, reader response, narrative structure, characterization, textual gaps, cultural repertoire, and redundant antitheses.
- . Luke-Acts and the Jews: Conflict, Apology, and Conciliation. SBLMS 33. Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1987. Argues that Luke ties gentile Christianity to Judaism and appeals to Jews to accept it as such.
- Brown, Schuyler. Apostasy and Perseverance in the Theology of Luke. AnBib 36. Rome: Biblical Institute Press, 1969. Studies Luke's concept of temptation and faith and argues that the evangelist stresses the faithfulness of Jesus's disciples so as to ensure a reliable transmission of apostolic tradition.

- Buckwalter, H. Douglas. The Character and Purpose of Luke's Christology. SNTSMS 89. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1996.
- Cadbury, Henry J. The Book of Acts in History. New York: Harper, 1955. Provides context for understanding Acts through discussion of various cultural environments, including the ancient Near Eastern world in general and Greek, Roman, Jewish, and Christian environments in particular.
- . The Making of Luke-Acts. 1927. Reprint, Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1999. A classic study that treats Luke as an author in his own right and examines the literary process that resulted in his two works.
- Carroll, John. Response to the End of History: Eschatology and Situation in Luke-Acts. SBLDS 92. Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988. Emphasizes “unpredictability” as the main feature of Luke's eschatological perspective and describes the manner in which Luke thus weds eschatology to parenetic interests and to his concept of salvation history.
- Cassidy, Richard J. Society and Politics in the Acts of the Apostles. Maryknoll, NY: Orbis, 1987. Refutes the notion of an attempt by Luke to foster an essential compatibility between church and state and argues that Luke instead prepares Christians for possible persecution.
- Cassidy, Richard J., and Philip J. Sharper, eds. Political Issues in Luke-Acts. Maryknoll, NY: Orbis, 1983.

Chance, J. Bradley. Jerusalem, the Temple, and the New Age in Luke-Acts. Macon, GA: Mercer University Press, 1988.

Discusses the role that Luke believes Jerusalem and the temple are to play in the new age of salvation that has dawned.

Conzelmann, Hans. The Theology of St. Luke. Translated by Geoffrey Buswell. 2nd ed. London: Faber & Faber, 1960. A classic synthesis of Luke's theology by an outstanding redaction critic, with special focus on salvation history and eschatology.

Darr, John A. On Character Building: The Reader and the Rhetoric of Characterization in Luke-Acts. LCBI. Louisville: Westminster John Knox, 1992.

Dibelius, Martin. The Book of Acts: Form, Style, and Theology.

Edited by K. C. Hanson. Minneapolis: Fortress, 2004. Essays by an influential German scholar of the mid-twentieth century.

———. Studies in the Acts of the Apostles. New York: Scribner, 1956. A collection of classic essays on various topics, including interpretations of the speeches and the travel narrative in Acts from the perspective of "style criticism."

Dupont, Jacques. The Salvation of the Gentiles: Essays on the Acts of the Apostles. Translated by John R. Keating. New York: Paulist Press, 1967. A collection of essays by this French scholar on themes such as universalism, Pentecost, conversion, community of goods, and Luke's use of the Old Testament.

———. The Sources of Acts: The Present Position. London: Darton, Longman & Todd, 1964. A historical survey of theories on Luke's sources for Acts that concludes that it is impossible to identify any of these with certainty.

Easton, B. S. Early Christianity: The Purpose of Acts and Other Papers. Greenwich, CT: Seabury, 1954. Contains an important essay, originally published in 1936, that argues that Acts presents Christianity as a legitimate religion under the leadership of a Christian Sanhedrin.

Ellis, E. Earle. Eschatology in Luke. Philadelphia: Fortress, 1972. Presents a two-stage model (present and future) for understanding Luke's concept of eschatology and salvation history.

Epp, Eldon Jay. The Theological Tendency of Codex Bezae Cantabrigiensis in Acts. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1966. Demonstrates that an anti-Jewish bias underlies the variant readings in the Western text of Acts.

Esler, Philip. Community and Gospel in Luke-Acts: The Social and Political Motivations of Lucan Theology. SNTSMS 57. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1987. A study of Luke's community that seeks to combine insights based on sociological research with those of redaction criticism.

Evans, Craig A., and James A. Sanders. Luke and Scripture: The Function of Sacred Tradition in Luke-Acts. Minneapolis: Fortress, 1993.

Finger, Reta Halteman. Of Widows and Meals: Communal Meals in the Book of Acts. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 2007.

Fitzmyer, Joseph A. Luke the Theologian: Aspects of His Teaching. New York: Paulist Press, 1989. A collection of essays on a variety of themes, including authorship, discipleship, Satan and demons, the Jewish people, and the thief on the cross.

Flender, Helmut. St. Luke: Theologian of Redemptive History. Translated by Reginald H. Fuller and Ilse Fuller. Philadelphia: Fortress, 1967. Offers an alternative to Conzelmann's view of salvation history and eschatology in Luke by proposing that Luke presents the exaltation of Jesus as the consummation of salvation in heaven.

Franklin, Eric. Christ the Lord: A Study in the Purpose and Theology of Luke-Acts. Philadelphia: Westminster, 1975. An overarching study of such matters as Luke's eschatology, Christology, and view of the Jews that tries to situate the evangelist within the mainstream of early Christianity.

Garrett, Susan R. The Demise of the Devil: Magic and the Demonic in Luke's Writings. Minneapolis: Fortress, 1989. Studies Luke-Acts against the background of contemporary ideas concerning magic and the supernatural, concluding that Luke presents Jesus's ministry as an overthrow of Satan.

Gärtner, Bertil. The Areopagus Speech and Natural Revelation. Translated by Carolyn Hannay King. ASNU 21. Lund: Gleerup, 1955. Interprets Acts 17:22–31 in a way that is basically compatible with Pauline theology.

Gasque, W. Ward. A History of the Interpretation of the Acts of the Apostles. 2nd ed. Peabody, MA: Hendrickson, 1989. A detailed survey of literature through the 1960s, augmented by an article on recent scholarship published in 1988.

Gillman, John. Possessions and the Life of Faith: A Reading of Luke-Acts. ZS. Collegeville, MN: Liturgical Press, 1991. Explores Luke's views on possessions and draws connections for the faith life of twentieth-century Christians.

González, Justo L. Acts: The Gospel of the Spirit. Maryknoll, NY: Orbis, 2000.

Goulder, M. D. Type and History in Acts. London: SPCK, 1964. Offers a complex scheme for understanding the structure of Acts based on cyclical patterns and the use of Old Testament typology.

Gowler, David B. Host, Guest, Enemy, and Friend: Portraits of the Pharisees in Luke-Acts. New York: Peter Lang, 1991. Combines narrative criticism and sociological analysis in the study of the Pharisees as a character group in Luke's two-volume story.

Green, Michael. Thirty Years That Changed the World: The Book of Acts for Today. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 2004.

Hemer, Colin J. The Book of Acts in the Setting of Hellenistic History. WUNT 49. Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1989. Argues for the essential historicity of material in Acts, based on comparisons with Paul's letters and information from the Roman world.

Hengel, Martin. Acts and the History of Earliest Christianity.

Philadelphia: Fortress, 1980. Argues that Acts can and should be used as a source for reconstructing early Christian history and then sketches the history that can be derived from Acts.

Hovenden, Gerald. Speaking in Tongues: The New Testament

Evidence in Context. JPTSup 3. Sheffield: Sheffield Academic Press, 2002.

Jervell, Jacob. Luke and the People of God. Minneapolis: Augsburg,

1972. A collection of essays expounding the author's view that Luke writes primarily for Jewish Christians, addressing their questions about relationships with other Jews and with gentiles.

———. The Unknown Paul: Essays on Luke-Acts and Early Christian

History. Minneapolis: Augsburg, 1984. A collection of essays written from the same perspective as Luke and the People of God (above) on themes such as historicity, Luke's portrait of Paul, the Holy Spirit, and women in Acts.

Johnson, Luke Timothy. The Literary Function of Possessions in Luke-Acts. SBLDS 39. Missoula, MT: Scholars Press, 1977.

Suggests that Luke's emphasis on possessions has implications that go beyond the literal consideration of how to handle wealth.

Juel, Donald. Luke-Acts: The Promise of History. Atlanta: John Knox,

1983. A general introduction to Luke-Acts that, following Jacob

Jervell (above), interprets the two-volume work within the framework of Jewish crisis literature.

Kauppi, Lynn Allan. Foreign but Familiar: Greco-Romans Read Religion in Acts. LNTS 277. London: T&T Clark, 2006.

Keck, Leander, and J. Louis Martyn, eds. Studies in Luke-Acts. 1966. Reprint, Philadelphia: Fortress, 1980.

Kee, Howard Clark. Good News to the Ends of the Earth: The Theology of Acts. Philadelphia: Trinity Press International, 1990. Considers five important themes in Acts: Jesus, the Holy Spirit, Christian community, outreach, and witness.

Kilgallen, John. The Stephen Speech: A Literary and Redactional Study of Acts 7:2–53. AnBib 67. Rome: Biblical Institute Press, 1975. A detailed analysis that interprets this speech as a thoroughly redacted Lukan construction.
